What's New

Women's hockey team steps in for Chinese national team in Lake Placid, N.Y.

The U.S. national women's hockey team called the Concordia hockey office last Thursday with a rather unusual and desperate request. Would the Stingers please come to Lake Placid, N.Y., and play the U.S. national team on both Saturday and Sunday night. It seems the Americans were supposed to play China's national team in Lake Placid on the weekend. The Chinese had trouble with their visas and cancelled at the last minute. Therefore, the Stingers were invited to Lake Placid as last-minute replacements.

"It's unfortunate that we weren't able to face China, but we appreciate the fact that Concordia and coach (Les) Lawton eagerly stepped in to fill this two-game series on our schedule," said U.S. head coach Ben Smith. "Concordia represents excellence in Canadian women's college ice hockey, and I am certain our players benefitted from having this opportunity to play against this outstanding team."

The first night the Americans showed no mercy, defeating Concordia 10-0. Former Stingers Cammi Granato and Karyn Bye each picked up a goal against their old teammates. The Stingers played the match without two of their top players, sniper Corinne Swirsky and captain Kari Colpitts.

The second game on Sunday night was entirely different. The U.S. national team won 4-2, and this time Swirsky and Colpitts were in the lineup. Swirsky and rookie Tara Campbell scored for the Stingers. Also, in this game, coach Les Lawton called upon Jessika Audet to start in nets. She faced a barrage of shots as the Americans out shot Concordia 76-14.

"Jessika stood on her head," said Lawton. "She played great. Let me tell you, they're probably still talking about her in Lake Placid."

The Stingers return to Quebec conference play this weekend, beginning with a game against Collège Brebeuf on Friday at 7 p.m. at Concordia Arena, 7200 Sherbrooke St. W.
